Atty. Sean Walton

Partner, Walton + Brown Law

Sean is a highly respected attorney and civil rights advocate who has spent his career fighting for justice and equity. He has won numerous high-profile cases and has been recognized for his tireless commitment to his clients and his community. His journey in law is marked by a unique blend of strategy, innovation, and a deep understanding of civil rights, personal injury, and wrongful death matters. This commitment has not gone unnoticed; since 2018, he has been consistently recognized as a Rising Star in Ohio by Super Lawyers, a rare honor bestowed upon only 2.5% of attorneys. He is a respected voice in national conversations on civil rights and personal injury law, frequently featured in prestigious media outlets like The Washington Post, NBC Nightly News, and CNN. His insights are sought after in various forums, contributing significantly to legal discourse in America. Columbus Business First magazine aptly named him as one of the ten “People to Know in the Law,” underscoring his influence in the field.
